Richie Industries to Auction Clinton Anderson Autographed Shirts to Benefit NARHA

Denver – Clinton Anderson of Downunder Horsemanship, is literally giving the shirt off his back for charity. And in this case, he's giving two shirts. Ritchie Industries of Conrad, Iowa, has teamed with Clinton for this exciting opportunity. Starting the week of March 21, two shirts autographed by Clinton, will be auctioned at Ritchie's eBay store. All proceeds will benefit NARHA (formerly North American Riding for the Handicapped Association).

Two shirts will be available for bidding during the weeklong auction. All bidding will end Monday, March 28. Clinton wore the blue chambray and pink cotton shirts during his current Walkabout Tour. The long-sleeved, button-down shirts are made by Cinch and carry the embroidered Walkabout Tour logo as well as Clinton's autograph.

The high bidders of each shirt will also receive DVDs of the first five episodes of Downunder Horsemanship's nationally syndicated television show as seen on Fox Sports Network.

NARHA was founded in 1969 as the North American Riding for the Handicapped Association. It promotes safe and effective therapeutic horsemanship. The organization now touches lives across the world. Their 800 member centers include more than 6,300 individual members who help and support more than 42,000 men, women and children with special needs. They provide assistance through a variety of equine-assisted activities and therapy programs. Visit their website at www.narha.org.
